camp history 1975

Camp was well organized with John Ramage (Pres.), Georgia Bryan (V.P.) and Colleen Moore (Exec. Sec.) working quietly (and sometimes not so quietly) to keep catastrophes like no toilet paper, dark or cold cabins, and gritty dance floors down to a minimum. The battle against cold and dark cabins, however, was conceded on the last night when an electrical storm knocked out the power generator and, consequently, the heat in several cabins.

This was the first year for split sessions, promoting more free time and less crowded conditions on the dance floor. With free time scheduled, many dancers could finally take advantage of Camp Hoblitzelle's quiet beauty. Dancers who strolled beyond the cabins entered a world filled with brightly colored leaves, a quiet lake, and a tiny cemetery to tease the imagination. Some dancers enjoyed canoeing on the lake. Everyone appreciated the opportunity to sit around and meet new friends or deepen older friendships.

Our staff, Ada and Jas Dziewanowski and John and Paula Pappas, supplied us with several dances that are on their way to becoming permanent. Both sets of teachers worked overtime helping with party preparations.

They relaxed Thursday night while Houston's minstrels played excellent recorder music to put us in the mood for their Renaissance Party. At the party, the Austin Renaissance dancers treated us to authentic reproductions of two dances from the Renaissance period. But no one could best the authentic-looking costume of Selwyn Ligon's baggy-kneed panty hose (or were those baggy knees Selwyn's?).

The next day, during her "free time", Ada prepared a skit and selected and rehearsed her players. Her skit was bound for success when she cast John Singleton as the scarecrow which Jimmy Brown erected to prevent the loss of more apples from his apple tree (played by Pearl Clark). Following the skit, Ada and Jas performed a spectacular Oberek.

Johnny was not be outdone. No one will forget the slow Hasapiko contest which he and Ada judged. Among the contestants we had: Three Questionable women (Jeanne Young, Helen Hyams and Pearl Clark); Greeks (Winny Henry, Yorgos Kontos and Demitrios); Poles(Jas, Jimmy Brown, and Andre Stegman); An Elephant and his trainer (Mary Marshall, Ronald Houston, and John Singleton as the trainer); The Hasapibelliko dancers (Georgia Bryan and Julie Ureck); and the Upside-Down Hasapiko (Michel Sternberg, John Ramage, and Elliot Zais). The flippancy of this last group must have angered the Gods because shortly after the contest, the skies released a downpour of rain with lightning. At least one of Zeus' bolts struck home and many campers found their cabins cold and dark that night.

Sunday camp ended with a review session and a general cleanup. Ada and Jas packed away the numerous articles of Polish crafts and clothing that Ada had brought for sale while Bora and Margarita Gajicki did the same for the stock of folk articles and books they had brought from their shop, Folk Motif, in California. Everybody dispersed to their homes to get ready to go back to work and school. Ada, however, stayed in Texas for a few days after camp was over.

Remembrances by J. Clement in 2019

There does not seem to be a history written after this camp, so this is what I remember,. Pers and Magrette were last minute teachers, and dance with Philochoros at the university in Uppsula according to the syllabus. The 50's party of course had a lot of pull out of the closet 1950s costumes, that hopefully had not undergone closet shrinkage. But there was a smattering of other centuries. The earliest one was Janice Mendelson as a cave woman from 5050 BCE. Some of the dances still survive such as Hora Hadera, Yedid Nefesh, Slängpolska, and High Life taught by Dick Oakes.

The editor's photos are used as there were no photos in the original book.

Remembrances by J. Clement in 2019

There does not seem to be a history from this camp, so here are a few memories. Karen Gottier organized a skit. It was a recreation of a wine festival. I was the wine spirit in a mask like a bunch of grapes. Peggy Livinston was crowned the queen of the festival. Then as the spirit I picked her up and stole her away. I was chased by the village boys. Partway across the hall I slipped, went down on one knee and dropped Peggy on her tushie. Then the village boys captured her and brought her back. Nobody was hurt, but it left an indelible memory. In 2021 some pictures were donated.
